

Since XM radio is a paid radio service, the NAB should have no right to get involved with stopping traffic/weather reports as suggested. The ability to listen to commercial free radio and instant radio/weather reports for a monthly fee is what capitalism is about. If I choose to listen to standard am/fm radio and listen to standard generated traffic/weather reports for free, that is my option. If I choose to pay $12/mo for specialized radio service (i.e. xm radio/sirrius), I should be able to listen to whatever the options are available.

Does the NAB get involved when HBO wants to put specific programming on and ABC/NBC/CBS objects? HBO is allowed to put whatever programming it wants because it is a paid channel like XM Radio is.
